Home Field Advantage by Dahlia Adler is a compelling YA contemporary romance that delves into the world of high school sports and the complexities of young love. Set in a small town in the present day, the story revolves around the lives of two main characters, Ashlyn and Tatum. Ashlyn is the star pitcher of her high school softball team, known for her fierce determination and unwavering focus. Tatum, on the other hand, is the new girl in town, a talented soccer player who is trying to find her place in a community that takes their sports very seriously. As the two girls navigate the challenges of their respective sports teams and personal lives, they find themselves drawn to each other in unexpected ways. The book explores themes of friendship, identity, and the pressures of high school athletics.
